50 GREAT
PORTUGUESE WINES

Thursday, 7th February 2008 between 11am and 5pm

50 Great Portuguese Wines

'Those wines were fabulous! Where can I find them?' My normally reticent friend was yelling down the phone in a mix of astonishment and excitement. I'd passed on to him a few recently opened bottles from a tasting I'd done at home, and he and his family had just spent what sounded like a very enjoyable weekend getting to grips with them. 'I never realised Portuguese wines could be so good.'

One of the greatest pleasures of my job is introducing new wine experiences to jaded palates. With Portugal, I hit pay dirt regularly. Here you'll find flavours you just don't find in other countries, and there are now plenty of talented winemakers prepared to pack them into their bottles. So many in fact that limiting my list of Great Portuguese Wines to just 50 was something of a challenge. To make my task easier, I set myself a couple of rules: firstly, to omit any wine that had featured in the previous years' selections compiled by Richard Mayson, Tim Atkin and Charles Metcalfe, and secondly, to only have one wine from each producer.

To make your task easier, I've grouped the wines into five categories, with ten wines in each. Hopefully this approach will both highlight the diversity throughout the country, and also make what for many is still unexplored territory a little more user-friendly.

Firstly Whites. While Portugal is very much a red wine country, there are some fascinating white grapes, and as I hope this section shows a diversity of styles – they deserve attention.

Then come ten Great Value Reds. Some delicious wines here, none with an RRP of more than £7.50 a bottle. So they should fly off the shelves, right? Hmm... The quality's there in the bottle, but there's still plenty to be done in marketing terms to promote Brand Portugal to a world awash with wine – now if Jose Mourinho is looking for a REAL challenge...

The third section is the Douro. Portugal's top red wine region merits a '50 Greatest' event of its own, and this certainly was the hardest section to shoehorn into just ten wines. It does mean that what remains is of super quality – enjoy.

Enjoy too the fourth section, Central Portugal. The wines have echoes of those from southwest France, with the challenge to producers being one of taming the occasionally unruly tannins of some of the grape varieties without losing the perfumed wildness. Here's evidence that more and more are rising to that challenge.

Finally there are ten Southern Reds, remarkably different in style, from a range of both indigenous and imported grape varieties, yet all with a Portuguese accent.

Finally can I say what a privilege it has been to be asked to assemble this half-century and also pass on my warmest thanks to all those involved in organising this event. I welcome your feedback on any of the wines, and I'd especially love to hear from those who echo the comments of my gushing friend – 'I never realised Portuguese wines could be so good.'

A warm welcome from the Ambassador of Portugal

I am delighted, for the second time, to welcome you to the Portuguese Embassy in this very special occasion. Once again, we will have the opportunity to taste some of Portugal's best wines.

I sincerely hope you enjoy the diversity and quality of the wines that Simon Woods has chosen for you today. I would like to thank Simon for the difficult task of selecting ONLY 50 wines, as we have much more, of course!

With best wishes.
